CROSS-EXAMINATION OF ASSESSOR DALTON.

Returned the Money Because
He Feared He Would Be Sued
By Board of Supervisors.

When THE TRIBUNE went to press yesterday Henry P. Dalton was still on the witness stand. A few days still later, he said, Dalton came to the Assessor's office in response to a telephone message, and was given an order for 50 books to take the place of the 75 books. Dalton said he told Stedman to take this to Lanktree and give it to him in exchange for the claim for 75 books. Subsequently, Dalton said that there were plenty of mortgage books in the office, but he would give him (Stedman) an order for some other kind of books to take the place of the 30 mortgage-book order. Witness said he subsequently gave Stedman a second order for 50 index books to take the place of the 30 mortgage books. Those are the books now held by J. B. Lanktree as security for a loan of $800.

HILGARD EXPLAINS QUAKE IN LOS ALAMOS.

SAYS THE TROUBLE IN THAT SECTION IS DUE TO ASPHALT.

BERKELEY, Aug. 2.—The following letter has been written by Professor Hilgard of the Agricultural College of the University of California, who is also a geologist of years' standing, and who is especially well-informed as regards the condition and the geological formation of the southern part of the State, and especially of the country around Los Alamos for the advice and comfort of the people for which the letter is intended:

"BERKELEY, July 31.—District Attorney Leslie, Los Alamos—Dear Sir: Last night I could not undertake to explain to you just what I think of the chances of further earthquakes in your region at this time. While no geologist could render you any real assistance in such a case, and hence it would be of little use for any one from here to visit your locality, it may in a measure allay anxiety to give you the probable aspect of the case from this point of view.

"Earthquakes outside of volcanic regions are now fully accepted as readjustments of equilibrium in the earth's crust, which we know to consist not of solid rock strata, but rather of a congeries of blocks giving against each other somewhat on the principle of the arch, but, imperfectly, as the numerous 'faults' found everywhere, in mines and out of them, prove. Ordinarily the readjustments rendered necessary by the slow but sure contraction of the earth as a whole take place imperceptibly, but once in a while such readjustment is deferred too long, and the block or blocks—miles in extent—remain in a state of delicately balanced 'unstable equilibrium,' which may be disturbed by very slight causes, sometimes even by changes in the barometric pressure, just as a shunt may dislodge a dangerous pile of hanging on the verge of sliding.

"It appears that for some days past there have been tremors in your region—efforts at readjustment, but apparently not successful. So there came a severe shock arising, let us hope, from the fault-blocks sliding or dropping into a position of equilibrium, which it is likely to remain peacefully for some time to come.

"In my examination of the asphalt deposits of Southern California in the seventies, I was struck with the great frequency of faults in the mines, which is natural enough, considering the yielding nature of asphalt and petroleum, and the oozes of both constantly going on in the petroleum regions. Among the backslidings and dislocations thus caused the chances of something dropping down some time seem good, although when it happens gently and gradually we fail to notice it.

"In short, I think the probabilities are rather that you are in for a protracted rest from quakes rather than that after the heavy shock there will be heavier ones. You may look for light tremors until your block gets well settled, but I should not move out of your country for fear of further temblors.

"The Inyo earthquake in the sixties came after a long rest. Then suddenly a piece of Nevada could not stand it any longer and dropped some ten feet along a fault of quite a hundred miles. Since then Inyo has been quiet. Respectfully yours, 'E. W. HILGARD.'

HARRY BROWN MAKES GOOD HIS ESCAPE.

HE CLAIMED THE LADY AS HIS WIFE.

MRS. FARNELL DID NOT LIKE THE NERVE OF A. D. Mc-DERMID.

The preliminary trial of Archibald McDermid, the private detective who in the guise of a sewing machine agent is accused of having entered the home of Mrs. F. M. Farnell, 1902 Market street, developed a mild sensation, which is hardly to the credit of the defendant, according to the testimony of the complaining witness.

During the direct examination of Mrs. Farnell the testimony showed that the complaining witness had missed a watch, ring and purse containing a small amount of money, after a visit from McDermid. During the cross-examination of Mrs. Farnell, by Attorney Lin Church for the defendant, it developed that McDermid and the complaining witness had an acquaintance prior to the alleged theft of the jewelry, which, according to Mrs. Farnell, was anything but pleasant.

During the "Carnival at San Rafael," Mrs. Farnell said that at the invitation of friends she went to that place to witness the sights. While there she encountered McDermid, who immediately pressed a slight previous acquaintance, until he became so objectionable that the complaining witness had to request the private detective to desist.

Mrs. Farnell further testified that they had refreshments at a local resort and that she drank portwine. Immediately thereafter she says McDermid introduced her as his wife, although she was in the presence of friends.

When Mrs. Farnell started to return on the 6:29 boat, McDermid was there and persisted in showing her obnoxious attention. She says that she upbraided him for his audacity in introducing her as his wife.

The next meeting between Mrs. Farnell and the private detective was at the jewelry store, where McDermid introduced her as his wife. She says that she was going into the kitchen for lunch when McDermid accosted her and insisted on entering the private dining room against her protest. Each paid for their meal. Another similar meeting took place a few days later.

The next meeting was when McDermid called at her home, the time the jewelry disappeared. The cross-examination ceased. The court then adjourned until Monday next.

AIN ALAMEDA MAKES AN EXPLANATION.

Rev. Hitchcock Has No One Calls to Claim Something to Say to Skull Found on the Masons. the Beach.

ALAMEDA, Aug. 2.—The address made by Rev. L. Potter Hitchcock at the funeral of Mrs. Browning Thursday in Alameda, in which it is claimed that the reverend gentleman in his funeral address said that there was a lack of religion in fraternal organizations in general and the Eastern Star and the Masonic order in particular.

Now Rev. Hitchcock comes forward with the original notes on his address, which are to be understood as expressing his true views on the subject. The statement given out by the pastor as to what he actually said and avers is in part as follows:

"I might speak to you of the suddenness of death, so sudden as only to give time to obey to us a shock and a mystery—but if I have studied this life correctly, from her present consciousness and experience within the hereafter, I think that she would say 'Leave that, and tell them that with all their loyalty to home and friends and secret and treasured orders, be more loyal to the interests of the soul and God's kingdom and why? Because it means more, includes all and endures forever.'

"From a number of things I have heard of late, I believe that there is arising in many of these noble orders a misconception of God's saving religion. The foundation principles on which they are based are Christianity, which they endeavor to live only through and through, of this order, 'Holiness unto the Lord,' within a perfect triangle. But these institutions were not founded to teach religion or propagate it.

"They were instituted to manifest one phase of the brotherhood of man. I have a father and brother that belong to the order of Masons, and therefore, know a little about their workings. The mission of these orders is to advance their own interests, and by it scatter a brighter sunshine along life's way. A glorious object, for life needs such a happy influence. But these institutions are not to be used as a means to bring about a personal relationship with God. That is an individual way. And it is right here that many of these orders fail, and that not through any fault of theirs, but because it is not their mission. No secret order can save a man, join a church with him, or do it, it is a personal relationship with him. Having this loyalty it makes but little difference whether it is from our own homes, or suddenly among the hills of Scotland, we shall be ready to step over into the other country.

"A few months ago, in pleading with me to join a certain brotherhood, I was told, 'Our order will help you to know your Bible better.' I did not doubt it, but I noticed that it had not brought about a personal relationship with God. The mission of these orders is to advance their own interests, and by it scatter a brighter sunshine along life's way. A glorious object, for life needs such a happy influence. But these institutions are not to be used as a means to bring about a personal relationship with God. That is an individual way. And it is right here that many of these orders fail, and that not through any fault of theirs, but because it is not their mission. No secret order can save a man, join a church with him, or do it, it is a personal relationship with him. Having this loyalty it makes but little difference whether it is from our own homes, or suddenly among the hills of Scotland, we shall be ready to step over into the other country.

"These secret orders may give social pleasure, insure against sickness and death, but they can only go as far as you sisters can today—to the brink of the grave. Personal relationship to God is the one thing needed, and that is not to be obtained through any secret order. It is a personal relationship with God. That is an individual way. And it is right here that many of these orders fail, and that not through any fault of theirs, but because it is not their mission. No secret order can save a man, join a church with him, or do it, it is a personal relationship with him. Having this loyalty it makes but little difference whether it is from our own homes, or suddenly among the hills of Scotland, we shall be ready to step over into the other country.

"The resolutions adopted by the City Council at the death of Charles A. Bon were given to E. A. Barker of this city to engrave, and very successfully did so. The resolutions were put upon a sheet 22x28 inches and enclosed in a frame of appropriate design.

This is a vital question. It is fraught with interest to Oakland. It permits of only one answer. It cannot be evaded or ignored. An attempt to evade it would be a disgrace to the welfare of Oakland. A citizen's statement is reliable. An utter stranger's doubtful. When a man has been performing work and even when the backache is not so pronounced as to prevent working it certainly is an aggravating annoyance. When in Ecuador, South America, I first noticed that in some way my kidneys were not performing their functions properly and aching pains were caused. Since then other attacks have occurred and I was suffering from one when I noticed Doan's Kidney Pills advertised in our Oakland papers and went to the Owl Drug Co.'s store for a box. If the first had not helped I never would have bought a second, and if the second had not brought greater relief I never would have continued the treatment. You can say for me that Doan's Kidney Pills are the best. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

COL. FOX SAYS BUSINESS IS GOOD.

Col. John E. Fox, the popular and affable manager of the Girard Piano Company stated this morning that the July business of the company, was the largest for a July month since the concern has been in existence. Mr. Fox said "last May we received six carloads of pianos, and today not one remains unsold." He duplicated the order a few weeks ago and I expect another six carload invoice shortly. We have no complaint to make regarding business. Trade is fine and we are partly attributed our large patronage to judicious advertising. We use the columns of THE TRIBUNE exclusively and will continue to do so. THE TRIBUNE is a great advertising medium. I have learned that to be a fact and will use its columns regularly.

Col. LIBERALS WILL NOT CONTROL. PARLIAMENTARY ELECTION IN- DICTATES LIBERALS WILL NOT OWN GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Calmer estimates of the significance of the unprecedented Liberal victory in this week's Parliamentary election in Leeds indicates little real basis for the alleged renewed hopes that the Liberals are gaining control of the government. The government has been soundly lectured and solemnly warned this week, not only by its opponents, but also by some of its journalistic supporters, but the opposition's enthusiastic prophecies about early getting together of all branches of the opposition were pretty effectually squelched by Lord Rosebery's dispassionate reiteration that he has no intention of abandoning the Imperialist platform, and the equally stubborn contention of the Radicals that they will not relinquish home rule as a standard party issue. In politically depressing Lord Rosebery's remarks, the Liberal organs disappointedly remark: "We do not think Lord Rosebery quite realizes the passionate desire for unity that exists among Liberals throughout the country, nor the passionate desire to arrive at it with or without leadership."

The paper scolds the Liberal leaders for their folly in splitting hairs at a time when this government is floundering in the labyrinth of the patched-up education bill and is "revealed to the country to be without policy."

A. J. PATTERSON IN A NEW POSITION

Kendall who have been associated for the past few years with their brother Alpheus Kendall in the Pacific Coast Lumber and Mill Company, have sold their interests in the business to Kendall and have withdrawn from the firm. Mr. Kendall has engaged A. J. Patterson to look after the lumber business, his time being largely employed about his extensive mill, and sand and door factory. Mr. Patterson is a member of the Globe Furniture Company on Third street, which is doing a large business in this city.

ROCKETRY BANG.
A group of boys gathered for play. "What shall we play?" is the cry. "Rocketry-bang," exclaims one of the lads. "My rock 1." "My rock 2," cries another. "My rock 3," "my 4," "my 5," and so on call others in quick succession.

The last loud cry must be the cry, who guards the castle, said being a large rock or fence upon which the boys place the tower—a rock at least as large as a good-sized snowball.

Ogre cries "bang," and the boys in turn fling stones at the tower. If one happens to hit the tower he starts off at once, the boys all following in swift pursuit.

If by chance he can pick up the missile which he himself threw, he is free. If caught he must become an ogre and guard the castle. In case all the throwers miss the ogre may catch any one of them if he can.

Whom-ever the ogre catches must take the ogre's place and ogre takes the captive's missile and bangs at the tower. The lad who hits the tower and secures his own rock the largest number of times during the game wins first place.

PIANO HOUSE FAILS

After a Business Career of 25 Years an Old House Gives Up.

For more than 25 years, the Spencer Piano Company, located on Market street in San Francisco has been engaged in business, but in the last few year competition has been so keen that only the wide awake, up-to-date firms have been able to keep up with the situation—One of those unable to do this was the Spencer Piano Co.—So they decided to quit—Of course it took cash money to buy their immense stock, and they soon found it impossible to find a buyer who would take the stock in a lump and pay even factory prices:

Kohler & Chase Oakland store were asked to bid on the stock and after a few days consideration it was accepted, because WE AGREED TO PAY ALL CASH—and you may rest assured we got the stock at our own figures—away down.

We are therefore able to quote exceedingly low prices on a lot of high grade pianos, all new, except a few instruments which were taken in trade by the Spencer Piano Co.

A PATIENT ANGLER'S IMPATIENT BAIT.
(From the Calhoun (Ky.) Star.)
A couple of gentlemen of this town went below the dam Saturday fishing. They failed to take any bait. Finally one of them scrambled around and what a wonder! The other caught a minnow. For hours they patiently waited on the bank without getting a nibble. At last the owner of the worm cried out that he had a bite, and jerking his hook out of the water saw at the end of it the other fellow's minnow, which, having by this time grown hungry, had devoured the worm.

Harvest Sale

Next Monday morning at 8 a. m. we start one of our great mercantile events.

We again call it a "Harvest Sale" for it is a harvest of bargains.

It is a fiesta for housekeepers, a chance to reap the benefits of months of careful gathering, an opportunity to purchase, at a remarkable discount, some of the best goods the world produces.

All during summer this bargain crop has been growing. Remnants have been accumulating by hundreds, odd sizes have been springing up and several lines have been waiting in our stock rooms because they were not as ordered or were received too late.

The latter will be sacrificed at the expense of the manufacturer, the remnants and the odd sizes have been cut to less than cost, and the entire store has been turned into one great bargain counter where anything can be bought at almost any price.

Is there anyone, anywhere, who can afford to miss a sale like this?

THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE

N.E. 12th @ Wash'g'n, Oakland

SALE COMMENCES MONDAY, AUGUST 4th

WHAT the POLITICIANS in the STATE are DOING

(Special to the Tribune.)

SAN FRANCISCO, August 2.—The first general primary under the new State law is evidently going to be a success. As was to be expected, there were many tangles and technicalities to be straightened out, but now everything is comparatively smooth sailing, and those who at first were bitterly opposed to the innovation seem inclined to welcome it.

Although it is only mandatory in certain cities it is practically being applied to the entire State, for the recommendation of the State Central Committee that its spirit be followed wherever possible has led to a very general response. Furthermore, it is known that those who have announced that appointed delegations will not be seated at the State Convention mean business. Rather than take the chances of losing representation altogether, the commanding influences in the various sections are following rigidly the instructions given them, and the outcome will be that the next State Convention will witness the rare spectacle of every delegate present being the result of a vote of the people either directly or indirectly.

What effect this is all going to have upon organized politics remains to be seen. In the past it was easy enough for the various County Committees to make up a State Convention to suit the existing powers, but now that the selections are to be made at the polls it may prove what Kipling terms another story.

An interesting feature of the situation is that every one is satisfied with the outcome—at least so they say. After the 12th of August passes by there will doubtless be attacks on the primary law by those who lost, so that they can let themselves easily down, but it will be too late to change matters then, and if the measure stands the test of the approaching election it is likely to remain upon the statute books indefinitely.

The Gubernatorial Fray.

All of which leads up to the question how are the various gubernatorial campaigns coming out? While once in a while the attention is diverted to the Supreme Court Justices' fight, or some other State ticket issue, it is dodging the inevitable to try and keep the calm of the great contest over the Governor's chair, for it is unquestionably one of the most interesting we have experienced in late years.

That the contestants must be well matched is perhaps best indicated by the absolute confidence each possesses as to the result of the struggle. Governor Clark wears a smile of confident satisfaction when he discusses the situation, for in view of what he has noted in politics during the past twenty years, when organization contends with lack of organization, but the one result can be seen. As regards the assertions that his home county of Los Angeles will to a considerable extent be turned against him, he says, "Wait and see," and he makes no reservations to his claim that he will carry Los Angeles from one end to the other.

Then there is Flint. He realizes that this is the fight of his life, for if he cannot win now when the fates are more propitious to his candidacy than ever before, he will have to take a gallery seat and sit down for a long while. But then losing is out of the question to his mind. The confident air worn by Gage is fully duplicated in the camp of Flint, and his friends for having held up some of the early conventions. It looks to them as if everything from now on will come their way.

Dr. Pardee is not so demonstrative about his prospects as some of the others are about theirs, but he has figured out the situation upon lines that give him a royal chance, and he is going after the permission with all the energy at his command. As soon as it was publicly proclaimed that he and Metcalf had reached an agreement and that the Alameda County delegation was with him as a unit, he decided to get down to practical work, and has since headed for the South to see for himself how things are.

It may surprise some people, too, to hear that in no camp does more confidence exist than in that of E. H. Edson. The work that has been done in his behalf is general throughout the State, so outside of those in his confidence, and who know exactly what has been going on, neither public nor politicians can size up his strength. It is conceded, however, beyond dispute, that he will have a solid North behind him, and if it should prove that he had any considerable following in other directions he might feel some of those who are now inclined to throw cold water upon his candidacy.

The Dark Horses.

While the gubernatorial contest is practically confined to the quartette named, there are plenty of wiseacres around who claim to have inside information as to how this or that man will be sprung at the last moment.

For awhile it was the custom to associate the name of Judge Frank Short of Fresno with this issue of probability, but of late the political speculators have soared off in other directions, and judging by the wild guesses occasionally heard they are shooting as wide of the target as ever.

The latest boom of this description consists of a story that at the eleventh hour Garoutte will be given the nomination for Governor, and thus leave the way clear for Beatty for Chief Justice.

Then there is the tale that Alden Anderson is the man, and in his case it is argued that the big dailies went on record in his favor during the Speakership fight, and hence are secretly in a position to now come out against him. Halston and Potter are likewise among the latest talked about, but summing up the situation it looks as if all this "dark horse" talk is a mere waste of time, for certain it is that at present there is absolutely no second choice for Governor as far as the organization is concerned—it is Gage or nothing, and the colors are nailed to the masthead.

A Rousing Reception.

The reception at the Union League Club on Wednesday evening deserved more attention than it was accorded by the daily press, for a more representative throng of Republicans could scarcely have been brought under one roof. In addition to all the local celebrities, many delegations were on hand from the interior, Sonoma county contributing Judge Burnett, Editors A. B. Lemmon and Olmstead, County Treasurer Woodward, and ex-Assemblyman Walker Price; Solano was represented by Senator Luchinsinger; Kings by W. L. McGuire; Marin by Judge Angelo, Recorder Pryor, Editor Olmstead and George Hudley; Sierra by U. S. Webb; Sacramento by Colonel H. C. Bell; Butte, by T. Bernard and Judge Gray; Siskiyou by E. B. Edson; Placer by Lieutenant-Governor Neff; San Benito county by Dr. Flint; Napa by Drury Melone and T. Hutchinson; Fresno by Judge Frank H. Short and Alameda county by a large local delegation.

The speeches were good, the address of welcome by General Horace G. Pratt being in a very happy vein and containing jocular allusions to his desertion from the Democratic fold. Senator Perkins made the chief response on the part of the Congressional delegation, and was accorded a very hearty reception when he mounted the temporary platform. He renewed in brief the work of Congress, complimented his colleagues, and of course told some good stories.

Congressman Needham followed, and was also accorded a rousing reception. He selected the irrigation issue as his theme, and made a very neat and well-turned address.

Congressman Frank Coombs, who came next, got a hearty greeting, and although he did not make a very long speech, it was right to the point and was much enjoyed.

What in a measure should be termed "the event of the evening," was the address made by Congressman Woods. He sailed into his subject in a way that showed he meant business, for he did not hesitate to take the President to task on the reciprocity issue and the reasons that brought about the banding of the "insurgents" at Washington. Congressman Woods was extremely laudatory in his references to Senator Perkins, whose power in Congress he dwelt on at much length. His speech was full of fire from first to last, and he must have been well satisfied with the way it was received.

Congressman Julius Kahn was accorded a warm rally as he stepped to the front. On account of the lateness of the hour he cut his effort short, confining himself principally to the gratification felt by the members of the delegation at the way their work was received.

The only other addresses of the evening were by President Thomas of the Forest Association, and Colonel George Pippy, President of the Club, in his capacity as master of ceremonies.

The arrangements for the evening were thoroughly in harmony with the occasion. There was orchestral music, floral decorations, punch, galore and champagne. HATTON.

Railroad News from West Oakland Yards

The busy season of the Southern Pacific railroad opened with a rush this week in coal, sugar and lumber. The huge quantity of coal which arrived last week from Australia has been supplemented with additional cargoes which have swamped the Long Wharf with work.

SUGAR TRADE.

The Hawaiian sugar trade opened briskly, about $500,000 worth of the rough product of the cane being received. It is calculated that the season's output will be nearly double that of last year. Cargoes of 100,000 to 150,000 bags per week have been received with great regularity this season. The shipments are consumed mainly by New York and eastern refineries, although the local firms have handled more this year than heretofore.

BEET SUGAR TRADE.

The beet sugar trade which is one of the most promising of California's industries has been opened with nearly as much vigor as the Hawaiian staple. Already Salinas valley is shipping from ten to twelve carloads of rough sugar per day, making quite a respectable showing for the week.

The company anticipates a sufficiently heavy traffic this year to require many special cars. With a view to handling the expected shipment, the company is preparing a number of special cars in the car building department. While the run lasts these cars will be used exclusively for the beet trade.

The refineries of Alameda county are also making large preparations for the handling of the beets, and anticipate an unusually heavy run. They will employ many more men than usual.

LUMBER ACTIVITY.

Last week a record breaking traffic was done in lumber, over 5,000,000 feet being handled. This week is a close second with 4,000,000 feet of lumber. These figures are unprecedented in the history of the company, and tell their own story of the building activity throughout the State.

SUGAR PLANE.

The sugar plane trade, which has been dormant for the last few months, shows signs of awakening. The lumber has been cured in the mountains and is beginning to find its way to market. It is necessary to put the pine through a process of drying before it is of commercial value. Last year Australia proved to be America's best customer.

There are a number of Australian vessels lying in the harbor now which will take on cargoes of pine, as soon as the lumber arrives from the north.

GRAIN SEASON.

The grain season will soon begin. There are a dozen vessels lying in the harbor waiting for the season to open so that they may load with Californian cereals for the European market.

EMERGENCY HOSPITAL IS MADE UP-TO-DATE.

The emergency hospital of the Southern Pacific Company has been thoroughly equipped with modern appliances, and in point of efficiency it ranks with the public hospitals of the city. The hospital was started two years ago by the company and has been of inestimable value since then to the unfortunate who have been injured.

The modern appliances for the care of the injured are so thoroughly up-to-date that one might readily take the hospital for a detention hospital instead of an emergency hospital.

There is an operating table, with all the necessary appliances for capital operations. The operating room is supplemented by a ward where patients may remain until they can be moved in safety to the general hospital of the company in San Francisco. Among the most valuable appliances is the mechanical device for the injection of saline solution for the stimulation of the heart where the victim has suffered great loss of blood.

The hospital is kept as cleanly and neatly as the best private hospitals. It has been under the supervision of Dr. Gardner, superintendent of the company's general hospital. The actual work has been efficiently done by Dr. J. P. Dunn and Dr. J. J. Meigs. These two gentlemen have co-operated with their chief in making the hospital thoroughly modern.

Its value has been demonstrated many times in saving lives, and is one of the best paying investments the Southern Pacific Company has made.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC SETTLES MACHINISTS' DIFFICULTIES.

The conference between the machinists of the divisions of the Southern Pacific Company and the head officials of the company has terminated, with both sides satisfied. While the men did not obtain all that they asked for, their demands were given a respectful hearing and a portion of the concessions asked granted.

The request that the wages of the machinists on all divisions be increased was denied. The reason given by the company for refusing this request was that the employees of the company at the present time in all departments were receiving a higher wage than the employees of any railroad corporation in the world. The company stated that a wage competition it was necessary to keep within a reasonable distance of its competitors in the matter of wages.

All the other concessions asked by the men were granted in part, and some of them entirely. The question of apprentices, and of holidays, and pay for the same was decided entirely in favor of the machinists. On the whole the machinists believe they achieved quite a victory by diplomacy and arbitration.

Union sentiment continues on the increase, and thus far the company has not indicated a desire to oppose the wish of the men to unionize.

The men are proceeding carefully, and are soliciting men of known ability for the head officers. The policy of the union is to suppress those who would be apt to incite trouble by hasty action, and to elevate those who have shown themselves to be discreet and self-reliant.

From indications the present union movement will crystallize into a solid and permanent organization, which will not only help the men themselves, but will be an aid to the company itself in providing the services of thoughtful, competent mechanics. The switchmen have not heard of the result of their communication to Superintendent Palmer, but believe the demands will be granted in part at least.

SANTA FE IS ERECTING PINSET GAS PLANT.

The Santa Fe Company is erecting a Pinset gas plant at Point Richmond, for the supply of its trains on the Pacific system.

Heretofore the Santa Fe has relied upon the Southern Pacific Company for its gas, but will shortly use its own manufacture.

The Southern Pacific plant is the most extensive on the coast and has supplied nearly all the consumers of gas on the coast. The Santa Fe plant will be the third one on the Pacific slope.

STEAMER PROMONTORY TAKES OVERLAND TRIP.

The steamer Promontory, recently constructed by Superintendent Bruce of the shipyards, has been taken apart and shipped overland to Salt Lake, where it will be put together again for service on the inland sea. It will be met at Salt Lake by the engines and machinery, which has been constructed in St. Louis.

The vessel, which is taking an overland trip, is 135 feet long by 65 feet wide. It has a draught of about six feet. It will be used in carrying material for the Lucien cut-off near Ogden.

YARDMASTER BRETTEVILLE IS SERIOUSLY HURT.

Yardmaster Bretteville was caught between two cars he was coupling this week, and narrowly escaped being killed. As it was one of his feet was mashed by the car wheel, and an operation was necessary to save it. The bones were badly crushed. A portion of the bones of the toes had to be removed. The injured foot has not healed very rapidly.

LARGE ORDERS FOR CALIFORNIA WATERMELONS.

For the last few days rush orders have been piling in from Eastern cities for watermelons. Car after car has departed for the East laden with the melons. It is said that the demand for watermelons has been greater this year than in any of the preceding years.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS WILL BE CARED FOR.

The Southern Pacific Company has made unusual preparations for the handling of the Pythians, through which will begin to arrive next week. Engines on other divisions are being sent for, and special train accommodations prepared. The yard will be cleared of all but cars actually needed.

PROF. G. S. BLESSING STUDIES AID PRINCIPLE.

Prof. G. S. Blessing of the University of Nevada, has attached himself to the staff of Engineer Tests, who has charge of the air brake system of the Southern Pacific, and will seek to gain a practical knowledge of the workings of air. At present both Prof. Blessing and Engineer Tests are taking the indicator cars on the Pacific system.

INTERESTING BREVITIES FROM LONG WHARF.

The following vessels have discharged cargoes of sugar: Rosmonde, 55,000 bags; Annie Johnson, 20,000 bags; St. Catherine, 16,000 bags; H. C. Wright 10,000 bags.

The Amy Turner is now working. She has a cargo of 15,000 bags.

The ships Huganoot and Melanoe have discharged cargoes of Australian coal and are down to stiffening. The ship Osbourne is discharging a cargo of 4900 tons of coal.

The Lord Adams and Earl of Dunmore are waiting their turn. The following lumber vessels have discharged cargoes: Newark, Coquille River, Colin, National City, San Pedro and Phoenix.

The William P. Frye has finished loading with 2000 tons of scrap steel for New York. She will complete her cargo by taking on wood and wine at San Francisco.

PERSONAL HISTORY OF THE RAILROAD MEN.

W. W. Morrison, chief clerk at the freight yards, and family have returned from a three-weeks' outing near Mount Shasta. They have taken up their residence at 1133 Adeline street again. Operator Fisher of the freight yards is off on a leave of absence to perform the sad duty of supervising the funeral arrangements of his father, who died this week at Santa Barbara.

United States Weigher W. S. Hahn is again stationed at the West Oakland scale house, looking after the interests of Uncle Sam.

Passenger yard master Douglas suffered a sprained ankle this week in the yards, which will detain him from attending to his duties for several weeks. Erastus Young, general auditor of the Union Pacific, arrived in his private car Thursday, and is in San Francisco attending to the business of his company.

W. H. Welch of the car repairing department, has returned after an extended outing and hunting trip. E. Gunkah of the car repairing department has resigned his position to accept a better one in the locomotive department.

Foreman Robert Yates of the machine shops was compelled to lay off this week on account of a touch of rheumatism. Operator W. P. Dunn of the mechanical department will shortly take a trip to New Orleans. He has been granted a sixty-day leave of absence. C. B. Irish, foreman of the railroad shops at Mendota, has returned to work after a visit with his family.

Engineer T. F. Murphy has gone to Los Angeles where he will spend a vacation of two weeks. T. Rudolph of the machine shops, and family have gone to Calistoga, where they will spend their summer vacation. Machinist C. Swenson has gone to Los Angeles on a three-weeks' leave of absence.

Engineer T. M. Stone and family have gone to Susana to spend their summer outing. They will return in two weeks. E. W. Walton of the painting department has gone to Los Angeles for a two-weeks' outing.

Engineer D. H. Thomas has been granted a two-weeks' leave of absence. He will spend his outing at Capitola. Engineer Collins is still reported on the sick list.

BEAR-PROOF WAGONS IN YELLOWSTONE PARK.

(From the St. Paul Dispatch.) MAMMOTH HOT SPRINGS, Wyo., June 27.—Bears are more numerous in the park this year than ever before. Among the objects of interest, the bear-proof meat wagons, used to transport meat over the mountain roads to the park hotels, occasion no little comment. On first sight they are taken for Government ammunition wagons, as they are built along bomb-proof lines. The wagon beds are about three feet high and covered with heavy sheet iron, iron gratings on the ends providing ventilation. The bears are so numerous that these wagons have become a necessity. An ordinary wagon bed with a wooden box would be torn to pieces in a single night and the meat taken or carried away. It is doubtful if even these bear-proof wagons would withstand the test if exposed too long, owing to the ingenuity and great strength of the animals.

Tom—"What's the matter, old chap? You look all broke up."

Jack—"No wonder. I spent three hours last evening at the home of a young couple with their first baby."

BETTY MARTIN SCOLDS CITIZENS FOR APATHY.

What's the matter with the boosters, pushers and boomers?

Have they taken their guns and their dogs, Rip Van Winkle like, and journeyed to the Kaatskills for needed rest while the world goes by?

Hundreds of people will attend the convention of Pythian Knights soon to be held in San Francisco, and the exhibition of State products in the nave of the ferry building will doubtless be viewed by them with great interest.

The knights are a monied class of people, with brains and ability as well.

Why not show them what we of Alameda County can do and try to induce them to make their homes here?

Now is a chance, at our very doors, to show what good points we possess, and no one person or organization, apparently, with energy enough to take advantage of it.

The Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce and Improvement Clubs throughout the County have each and all been called to meeting regarding the matter by our Oakland Board of Trade, and not one representative has even taken the trouble to respond.

If a title of the energy which was displayed here during the Elks carnival was directed toward making an exhibit at the ferry building we could make a grand showing.

Alameda County is one of the most magnificent in the State and she should let the world know it.

In line is the contemplated co-operation of the real estate men with the City Superintendent of Streets toward keeping Oakland, and her streets particularly, in a presentable condition. A little work in that direction will accomplish wonders.

Weeds are growing everywhere. Not only along the edges of sidewalks are they in evidence, but numerous vacant lots attest the growing propensities of these unsightly growths.

Not only are these weeds evidences of neglect among property owners, but also a constant menace to property inside the city limits.

To a small boy weeds are synonymous with fire, and if he has a match in his trousers pocket it is almost impossible for him to resist the temptation to start a small blaze. They do this on the outskirts of town continually, and that more fires do not occur through such agencies is a matter of wonderment.

The fall cleaning is not sufficient. Once a month, at least, these matters should be attended to, and all ordinances regarding cleanliness and order strictly enforced.

Appropos, it is to be hoped that the real estate firms will be able to hold together in their resolve to keep "for sale" signs off fences and houses. I doubt if they do much real good, anyway. Intending purchasers usually visit real estate offices regardless of placards.

About the "To Let" signs, I am not so sure. Anyone who has even been house-hunting knows what a terrible task it is, and certainly every advantage should be granted them.

It has been customary among certain ones of the real estate guild in Oakland to list on their books every vacant house, whether so authorized or not, and as a result, house-hunters are frequently sent to look at places which have meantime been let by other agents.

To a tired house-seeker this is a most exasperating experience, and certainly unbecoming. It could and should be remedied.

Again, when a sign is in a window, prospective tenants frequently in passing have their attention directed to places which they otherwise might have thought occupied.

The house-hunter, to my mind, is deserving of all sympathy, and I for one, am in favor of "To Let" signs.

Why do so many people choose street cars in which to discuss private matters?

To folks of this sort it is like shaking a red flag at a bull—this riding with a friend in a public conveyance. Once in motion their tongues seem in some mysterious way to be loosened, and household and personal affairs of the greatest moment to the individual are discussed with freedom, utterly regardless of the fact that other occupants of the car are listening wide-eyed and open-mouthed.

One can hear all about a husband's peccadilloes, Sarah Elizabeth's lovers, the way Tommy wears out his stockings, and how hard baby cut her new tooth. These things are forced upon one's attention whether or not, for the women who tell about them, strangely enough, without meaning it, raise their voices over the noises made by the cars themselves.

The way some of these same women discuss their fellow passengers is equally to be commiserated. Nothing is exempt from the color of the hair to the size of the shoe, and the victim has to bear the

THE MARRIAGE QUESTION.

The marriage question, like the poor, is always with us. This year it has had a prominent place in the wise utterances of learned men addressing college graduates. No one has been quite so pessimistic as the professor who, last year, announced that "love and romance die out with the sound of the wedding-bells." Still, the general tone is mournful, and it will be a brave woman who marries with its echo in her ears. Says Harper's Bazar, "A comparatively young girl is a reflection of these dismal views. The sad truth taught by all experience in all ages is that the great mass of mankind are happier married than they would otherwise be because for most marriages is the fulfillment of nature's benign law, without which the race could never have organized society nor perpetuated it. In the fulfillment of that law, Heaven has ordained shall be found the completest happiness. Fortunately, however, the man and woman who choose to live together have no right to demand that the world should be changed to suit them. They must accept the world as it is, and make the best of it. Every woman does not obey Nature's law. 'Never marry but for love,' but she that then loves only what is lovely. The great multitude of husbands and wives are without reason about it. For most of them no wedding-bells ring out. They do not know the word romance; they feel it, and although Max Muller claims there is no thought without words, yet is there romance in millions of married lives without a vocabulary from the dictionaries. Such as these have been the makers of the human family. From them have sprung the noblest of every era, the greatest in the sciences, the most illustrious in the arts; aristocracy has been always a partner in the democracy of genius. The poor who know not the pitfalls of artificial society live their wedded lives out, if not in ecstasy, in content; and they serve the world better than all others who, otherwise devoted to humanity, linger in loneliness and perish leaving no trace behind.

If ninety per cent of the marriages were unhappy, as the pessimists claim, why in marriage and marrying would cause. For mankind would not consent to virtually wholesale forced-ordained wretchedness.

BOYS OF THE FAMILY.

Too many mothers accept the idea, which from much observance has become almost traditional, that she boys of the family do not need to be taught neatness in the care of their rooms and personal belongings. As a mother would hear to say recently: "All I ask of my sons is that they shall be persons neat when they finally leave their rooms." What disaster they leave behind or by what waste this neatness is accomplished was evidently of no moment to her. Yet why should girls only be trained in tidy ways? There is nothing unmanly in a neatly kept bureau-top or writing-table; to put the polishing brush after use back in the blacking-stool instead of on the mantel-piece, or to drop soiled linen and burnt matches each in its proper receptacle, is not effeminate and is most convenient and desirable. Uncle Sam knows how to train his boys. He is the best of housekeepers, and the lads who go to West Point and Annapolis soon discover that military and naval neatness is absolute and indispensable. Moreover, it can be acquired by the most untidy. Mothers should remember this when tempted to think it is "boy nature" to be careless in these respects. It is only boy nature plus poor training or no training. Make a really earnest attempt to counteract these conditions, and see how satisfactory will be the results.

DRESS AND ACCESSORIES.

Accessories of dress, in these days when dress means so much, cost often more than the clothes themselves. This, though rather a sweeping assertion, is true, and, after all, it can readily be seen how much money can be put into wraps, neck-wear, gloves, shoes, and the hundred and one details that are absolutely requisite to that look of perfection which is so marked a characteristic of the well-gowned woman of today. A woman who makes a point of always looking well-gowned and spending a comparatively small sum on her wardrobe, insists that she gains better results by having all the accessories of dress of the best and most expensive, and then economizing when need must be, in the gowns themselves. She always includes in the wardrobe at least one smart tailor-gown, but her shoes, hosiery, gloves, belts, and accessories are the new put in as one of the accessories—even the linings of her coats are most carefully chosen, and the result is certainly all that heart could wish for.

CARE OF THE NAILS.

A young woman who has been living in Paris for a year says that no French manicure who treated her hands used a cuticle knife about her nails or a steel nail-cleaner. The little orange-wood sticks sharpened to a broad point were used to push back the overhanging cuticle, and to clean the nails after each washing of the hands. In this way the delicate enamel of the nail is not injured, and the under-surface of the nail point is kept smooth. The French manicures, too, polish more often with a bit of camellia rather than a regular polisher, and cut the nails with a clipper instead of curved scissors. These clippers come in pairs, one for cutting the nails of each hand.

Emery boards or a velvet file is recommended for the little filing needed to shape the nails. Never cut the cuticle around the nail, but press back lightly with the orange-wood stick. Daily brief care when the nail is soft from the use of soap and water is all that is needed to keep the hands in good condition with a weekly manicuring. Use lemon juice instead of any other acid to remove stains.

EAR-RINGS ARE FASHIONABLE.

Now that it is possible to wear earrings without the disfiguring preparatory process of having the lobe of the ear pierced, the modish young woman has taken them up to some extent. The new ear ornament is provided with a little clamp attachment that fits it close to the ear lobe, and does away with the necessity that it shall hang from the ear. In the spring and early summer many solitary pearls were worn in this way, but the fashion has not held enthusiastically. Good taste has long ago decided that any decoration of the ear smacks of savage customs, and is altogether too closely allied with nose and lip rings to be desirable.

FOR THE CONVALESCENTS.

Italian jelly is a delicate and appetizing addition to a convalescent's menu. Soak for two hours a half-box of gelatine in half a cupful of cold water. Add one scant cupful of boiling water, the end and piece of one lemon, one cupful of sugar, and one pint of orange juice, strain and mould. If this is to be used for the family table it may be put together with fruits. Wet the mould in cold water, set it in a pan of ice, pour in a layer of jelly, and as it hardens add whatever fruits may be at hand—cherries stoned and halved, plums stoned and sliced in rings, sections of oranges, white grapes seeded and sliced, a few maraschino cherries if the fresh are not used, and so on—fastening each piece in place with a little jelly. Repeat till the mould is full.

SAUCE FOR ROAST GOSLING.

There are many ways of preparing gooseberries for the table. Both the green and red gooseberries make delicious jam. And both are excellent for pies and tarts. The green gooseberry is used for a sauce to be served with roast gosling. This is the way to make it: Remove the stems and tops from a box of green gooseberries; wash them in cold water; put them in an enameled or agate saucepan over the fire with just enough cold water to keep them from sticking to the pan. Stew them gently till the skins of the berries burst and they are quite soft; then press the pulp and juice through a strainer so fine that the seeds will not go through. Return the juice and pulp to the saucepan and let it simmer till reduced about one-third; then add a level teaspoonful of salt and enough sugar to sweeten slightly. Let it cook till the sugar is dissolved; then add a level teaspoonful of butter. Pour the sauce into a dish and place it to cool. When quite cool stand it in the refrigerator till ready to serve.

IN THE PLACE OF MAYONNAISE.

A cooked dressing for salad is made as follows: Boil a very fat sweet butter for the regulation mayonnaise; break two eggs into a bowl and beat well. First stir in a teaspoonful of sugar, then half a teaspoonful of salt, then, gradually, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, and lastly a tablespoonful of cream. Place the bowl inside a saucepan of boiling water. Keeping the water absolutely boiling, stir constantly and in a few moments the contents of the bowl will be thick and smooth.

SUPPOSED TO BE WITTY.

"He asked me to marry him." "And you accepted him?" "No. Idiot that I was, I asked for time." "And what did he say?" "He said he'd give me a year." "Ah! What did he say?" "I saw my mistake. I said two days would be plenty. But he wouldn't hear to it. He said no woman could make up her mind in such a short time. He really insisted upon my taking six months. We finally compromised on thirty days." "And then?" "He married that pretty-faced Birmingham girl the very next week."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

POETRY that MAY INTEREST the WOMEN FOLKS

SUMMER.

Winter is cold-hearted,
Spring is yes and nay,
Autumn is a weathercock,
Blown every way;
Summer days for me
When every leaf is on its tree,
When robins' nest a bower,
And Jenny Wren's a bride,
And larks hang singing, singing,
Blown every way;
Over the wheat fields wide,
And the anchored hills ride,
And the pendulum spider
Swings from side to side,
And the blue-backed beetles transact
Business;
And gnats fly in a host,
And furry caterpillars hasten
And no time be lost
And moths grow fat and thrive,
And ladybirds arrive,
Before green apples blush,
Before green nuts embrown,
Why, one day in the country
Is worth a month in town;
Is worth a day and a year
Of the dusty, musty, lag-last fashion
That days drone elsewhere.
—Christina Rossetti.

For her State's sake, and admire her
For her wit, if she be talking;
Fair and state and wit approve her;
For which all and each I love her.

Be she sullen, I commend her
For a modest, be she merry,
For a kind one her prefer I.
Bravely, everything doth lend her
Such much grace, and so approve her,
That for everything I love her.
—William Browne.

GOLDEN GLORIES.

The buttercup is like a golden cup,
The marigold is like a golden frill,
The daisy with a golden eye looks up,
And golden spreads the flag beside the rill.
And gay and golden nods the daffodil,
The gorse common swells a golden sea,
The cowslip hangs a head of golden tips,
And golden drips the honey which the bee
Sucks from the hearts of flowers and stores and sips.
—Christina Rossetti.

PRESENTIMENT.

With saintly grace and reverent tread
She walked among the graves with me;
Her every footfall seemed to be

A benediction on the dead.
The guardian spirit of the place
She seemed, and I some ghost forlorn.
Surprised by the untimely morn
She made with her resplendent face.
Aloved by some waywardness of will,
Three paces from the earth apart
She stepped and stood—my present heart.
Was stricken with a passing chill.
My child-love of the years ago,
Remembering, I smiled and thought,
Who shudders suddenly at naught,
His grave is being trod upon.

But now I know that it was more
Than idle fancy. O, my sweet,
I did not know such little feet
Could make a buried heart so sore!
—Ambrose Bierce.

SHE THAT I LOVE.

She that I love all dearness has,
All wisdom in her eyes,
With her fair hands she keeps my soul.
In its first paradise,
Her large looks cleanse my thoughts
as dawn
Makes perfect the dim skies.
She knows that when I die, her heart
Is the heaven where I go,
That through her eyes I look on God
And through her thoughts I know.

Yet once I said, "My weary love,
What burden grieves thee so?"
Now God has wrought a paradise
Where we might always be,
And well he knows for love of her
My soul is glad to see.
"A broken heart," she said, "dear love,
That got a wound from thee."

For there's never a man that loves a woman
But breaks her heart in twain.
Yet will not smile with pitying eyes,
Knowing it not in vain.
For men must wound before they love,
That are the sons of Cain.
—Anna Hempstead Branch

GOOD CHEER.

Stand in the sunshine sweet
And treasure every ray,
Nor seek with stubborn feet
The darkness way.
Have courage! Keep good cheer!
Our longest time is brief,
To those who hold you dear
Bring no more grief.
But cherish blisses small,
Grateful for least delight
That to your lot doth fall,
However slight.
And, let all hearts will bring
Love, to make glad your days;
Blessings untold will spring

About your ways.
—Celia Thaxter.

THE OLD HOME.

To one forefost with stress of trade
And schemes of gain in city marts,
There comes a breath of country hay
Wafted from passing carts.
Fades the long line of brick and stone,
The street's rude tumult dies away,
From money-getting for a space
His soul cries holiday.
And with him down the orchard path,
Past spring-house and the pasture
wall,
Her spirit walks who taught her child
Of the love that is o'er all.
The vision vanishes, and straight
The street's rude tumult in his ears;
But in his heart a heavenly strain,
And in his eyes, sweet tears.
—Charles Francis Saunders.

SPIDER-WEB.

A slender filament is yon
Bright bit of gossamer whereon
The sunlit spider swings—what if he fall?
A couch of grass is all.
A doting architect, he lays
His skillful courses on my ways—
But see how idly! For with one light blow

I lay his rafters low.
Yet he'll go building still, as I,
Whose castles oft in ruins lie,
Begin and spin again anew my filament
By some vast being rent.

Mayhap, because I choose to lay
My darling rafters on his way,
He sweeps his vexed forehead with a frown
And strikes my castles down!
—James Herbert Morse.

BEAUTY.

Beauty was born of the world's desire
For the wandering water, the wandering fire.
Under the arch of her hurrying feet
She has trodden a world full of bittersweet.
The blood of the violet is in her veins,
Her pulse has the passion of April rains.
Out of the heart of a satin flower
God made her eyelids in one sweet hour.
Out of the wind he made her feet
That they might be lovely and luring and fleet.
Out of a cloud he wove her hair
Heavy and black with the rain held there.
What is her name? There's none that knows—

Mother-o'-Mischief, or Mother-o'-Rose,
What is her pathway? None may tell,
But it climbs to heaven and it dips to hell.

The garment on her is mist and fire,
Anger and sorrow and heart's desire.
Her forehead jewels an amethyst,
The garland to her is love-in-a-mist.

Her girdle is of the beryl-stone,
And one dark rose for her flower has grown.
Filled to the brim with the strength of the sun,
A passionate rose, and only one.

The bird in her breast sings all day long
A wonderful, wistful, whispering song;
The song that is of all passing things,
None knows it—wingless or born with wings.
—Nora Hopper.

CHORUS GIRL.

One time a foolish chorus girl
Danced in a dizzy, giddy whirl
Until she said she didn't know
Which end her head was on, and so
She called in her friends and her friends as well,
And there wasn't a one in the crowd
could tell.
—Chicago Daily News.

PICKINGS from the PRESS for SERIOUS WOMEN

WOMEN DRAMATISTS.

Frenchwomen, are, in general, such appreciative admirers of the drama that it would be strange if some of them did not become successful playwrights. The most conspicuously successful Frenchwoman in this line at the present time is Madame Fred Gressac, whose latest production has been accepted at the Comedie Francaise, and will be produced next winter on the stage of the most distinguished theatrical house in Europe. It is a light comedy, and the title given it by Mme. Gressac is "Fine Mouchette," for which probably our nearest English expression is "a sly beauty." An interview with the same dramatist was recently published in La Fronde, the Paris daily paper, which is now in its sixth year, and can still boast that it is "edited, condensed, written and composed by women." From La Fronde we learn that Mme. Gressac has written her new piece in collaboration with Madame Croisset, who also helped her to put her former piece, "La Passerelle," into suitable form for the stage. There is to be nothing didactic about "Fine Mouchette," sheer amusement is its wholly rational object.

MIND AND MATTER.

The reputation of the literary woman as a sloven passed away with the middle of the last century.

Time was when indifference to the details of dress was considered a mark of genius. The woman with a pen wore slippers down at the heel, her gown was shabby and her fingers were lumpy. All that is now changed. The literary woman to-day has an eye to beauty and elegance and is not so far lost in the adventures of her hero and heroine that she forgets the graces and amenities of social life.

At the recent annual banquet of the literary women in London there was an array of talent that was matched only by the beauty and splendor of the toilets.

Among the guests were Mrs. W. K. Clifford, Mrs. Humphrey Ward, Mrs. St. Leger Harrison, better known as "Lucas Malet," Mrs. Heilmann (Kassandora Vivar), was radiant in an empire gown, with a jeweled bodice over a skirt of emerald green chiffon; Mrs. Harrison wore black lace over white satin, while Mrs. J. R. Green, the historian, who can spend a quiet evening with any king or queen she pleases, wore white satin brocade, faintly flowered. Other noted authors were equally well gowned.

No doubt a great part of the transformation from the ill-dressed writer of sixty years ago to the elegant lady of today is due to enormous sale of books and immediate profits.

With a full purse the literary woman may give carte blanche to the connoisseur whose business it is to know what peculiar style of beauty harmonizes with certain types of mind—what tones of color blend with certain degrees of vivacity. So with no more thought than the lilies of the field, successful literary women to-day may be arrayed in marvelous creations and with exquisite taste. To their credit it should be said, they are prompt to take advantage of the opportunity and the odium once attached to the profession is a thing of the past.

CARE OF THE SICK.

Mrs. Alice N. Lincoln gave a notable address before the Conference of Charities and Corrections at Detroit on "The Development of the Almshouse Hospital." Twelve years' experience in the work of the public institutions of Boston has qualified Mrs. Lincoln to speak authoritatively on the best methods of dealing with the sick or dependent poor. She holds that the almshouse hospital should afford as good care and as skilled treatment as the general hospital. In conclusion she said: "This is the plea I wish to interpose that the sick poor should receive the same care as sick persons elsewhere. They need the same nursing, the same nourishing food, the same cleanliness and care. It is better for them to have it, it is better for the community to give it, and it is an education for the nurses in any hospital to realize that the standard of nursing cannot be too high. It is the duty of the community to care for the dependent sick. An almshouse hospital cannot be too good; the citizens who pay for it can better afford to maintain it at a high standard of excellence than they can afford to allow the sick to linger uncared or uncared for, or not cared for as they should be cared for by a great city."

PROTECTION FOR IMMIGRANT GIRLS.

During the year nearly 800 girls, coming from twenty-two countries, were transient dwellers at the Immigrant Girls' Home, on the Battery, New York, and some 5000 have been inmates of it since its work began. The home ministers almost exclusively to Protestant women, the Roman Catholic church having a similar institution of its own near by. But while the home is managed by Methodists, it is practically undenominational in its workings, and has more than once given shelter and care to the needy Roman Catholic girls. "We do not preach to our girls," said Miss Mathews recently,

"We simply try to live rightly before them and surround them with an atmosphere of cheerfulness and purity, pervaded with the religious spirit, to show that we are personally interested in them and love them, and thus we seek to influence them for good and to strengthen their desire to lead worthy lives."

The results of this policy in the careers of the girls after leaving this place of refuge prove that it has been eminently judicious. The home, with its kindly and uplifting influences, has been the means of keeping hundreds from going astray and of inducing many to retrace the path of indiscretion. How its work ignores the bounds of sects and creeds is illustrated by the special attention given during the past year to the Finnish girls, who are fleeing from their oppressed country in annually increasing numbers. These young women are of the Lutheran faith, but they are as heartily welcomed as if they belonged to the society's own denomination. They are very responsive to the kind treatment they receive. Usually they are bright and tractable, and they quickly learn to speak English, and rapidly become Americanized in appearance. The contrast between one of them on her arrival and the same girl after she has been in the country for a short time is something very marked.

WHERE WIVES ARE BOUGHT.

Wives are still obtained by purchase in parts of Russian Europe. In the district of Kamyschin, on the Volga, for example, this is practically the only way in which marriages are brought about. The price of a pretty girl from a well-to-do family ranges from $50 to $100, and in special cases a much larger sum is obtained. In the villages the lowest price is about $25. It is customary for the fathers of the intending bride and bridegroom to haggle for a long time over the price to be paid for the lady. A young farmer whose father cannot afford to pay for a wife for him need not think of getting married.—Pearson's Weekly.

PRIZE WINNERS.

The Winchester prize of $2000 at Yale College for excellence in art has been won by Alice Hull Wetmore, and at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts all of the six prizes but one have been taken by women, the traveling scholarship of $800 for a trip abroad having been won by Miss Ella Hergshelmer. The Phi Beta Kappa key at Cornell University for the highest scholarship has fallen this season to eleven women and to only four men.

THEY ARE FARMERS.

Two young women of Nebraska, namely, the Misses Scott and Fish, a few years ago forsook teaching for farming, and in their venture have been so successful that their farm is considered one of the best in the region. No men are employed on this ranch, which comprises about 80 acres. During their first season they raised 1800 bushels of corn on these 80 acres. These feminine ranch owners have experienced seasons of bad as well as good luck, but on the whole they find farming a very profitable occupation.

IN THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

The most interesting of the new departures made at the English war office is the appointment of a lady on the staff. This is the first time a lady has had a local habitation in the building. The lady in question served at the front as a nurse, and, having recently returned, has been appointed to a position at the war office. She has a private office and a separate little sub-department of her own. She is to have charge within the war office of the affairs of the army nursing department.

Information for the Boys and Girls

A GAME FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

In a certain company of grown-up and well-educated people not long ago a prize of $10 was offered to anyone who could give a brief description, or even name the colors of fifteen different national flags. Every member of the company tried to do it and every one failed.

Now, there is no particular advantage in a practical way in being familiar with the flags of all nations, but there is satisfaction in knowing things, especially if they are things that the average person does not know. Is there a boy or girl among our readers, for example, that would not be glad to be able to identify every national flag on sight? This pretty recess or home game will help you to acquire this knowledge.

Like most of the instructive games, it requires some preparation. In all the large dictionaries and in many encyclopedias and gazetteers may be found all the names of the nations printed in colors, and they are usually printed on a page altogether. Let some one who has a box of water colors paint the flags on a sheet of white cardboard, putting a number under each flag instead of the name of its country. Then as many sheets of paper should be prepared as there are persons to take part in the game, with numbers down the left hand margin of each sheet.

When you are ready to play the game, give a sheet of paper to each player, tack the cardboard up in plain view and allow, say half an hour's time for the players to write opposite to the numbers the names of the nations that belong there. No. 1, for example, will be the United States; No. 2, Great Britain; No. 3, France; No. 4, Russia; No. 5, Italy, and so on.

When the time limit has expired let the leader of the game collect the papers and check them off by a key which he or she has for that purpose, and the player that has the most correct numbers wins the game. If the game is played at home a prize may be offered—say a small United States flag made of silk.

It is not necessary that the flags should be drawn on the cardboard in a really artistic way, though the more neatly it is done the better.

TRAY GARDENS.

Not every child can have a great park nor even a garden, but poor, indeed, the child who may not have a tray of earth, which, with loving devotion, may be transformed into a garden or a park on a small scale.

Some trees readily lend themselves to this form of culture—maples, pines, spruces, rose and others. Take some of our horticultural artists at their best, and they will tell you secrets which would enable you to make the desert of many dreary spots bloom. While the Japanese have especially developed the dwarfing of plants, there are some gardeners in our own country who have also made a specialty of this.

To the child of moderate means but great plant love there are many avenues of information on the subject—books, encyclopedias, visits to noted gardens where there are those who are ever ready to answer intelligent questions; but what child could visit a garden-on-a-try bonked, the Japanese word? Some day find a tiny pine in a cup, rose or spruce, and an earthen dish an inch and a half deep and ten by fifteen inches, square or oval. Fill this with leaf or forest loam and plant the tiny trees. Keep them moist. Plant the top bud and then watch developments. By and by a double bud will spring where one had appeared. These will grow, and if you wish more branches pinch these buds. If you have a pine and a spruce or a maple and a dogwood you will have quite enough to interest you. If you love plants and wish to understand their lives.

You may make a hill or cliff simulate the deep forest or a crag over the sea. If you have gone about much and observed, you will have patterns enough to choose from. If you have never seen the real country, surely you may imagine a forest from books and pictures and grow a miniature forest. Dispose rocks and expose roots here and there. Arrange some moss on the north side of your tray. Do not have too much sun, but have the air as good as possible, and keep moist. Make walks. You may, with the help of rocks, form uplands and lowlands. There are tiny creeping vines that seem already dwarfed which will readily fit with a fairy plan of landscape. White sand will do for streams, and you may even simulate waterfalls with sand. It is a work of patience and love, but so perfectly may such a garden be made to duplicate a large space in miniature that the effect will be had of looking through the wrong end of a field-glass. Indeed, you have to make sure you are real, for the fairy garden is real, though so small only a doll could promenade the walks.

ABOUT A JOGGING BOARD.

It is a rare thing to find one of these fascinating things in any but the southern part of the country, where they are quite common. This seems rather strange, too, as the board is much more interesting to navigate than an ordinary hammock, to say nothing of the greater number of people it will accommodate. To be sure, the one who sits in the middle, with the two or three friends on each side, will feel a little like a sardine.

The most important thing is the board itself, which should be of seasoned oak, free from knots, with as straight a grain as possible, at least ten feet in length and not less than ten inches wide. The rockers or horses should be of hardwood, but spruce or hemlock will do. These should be very strongly made, with tight joints, well pinned or screwed together.

The board rockers must be cut from seven-eighths or one-inch stuff, according to the length of your board. Cut in a semi-circle. There should be at least eighteen inches from point to point. The upright should be of seven-eighths or one-inch stuff also, about twenty-six inches in height and four inches in width. On one end of this mark off four inches. Cut along this line half-way through, and with a sharp chisel remove the section. This is to be done with all four pieces and you must also in the top of the four rockers cut a section out into which the sawed ends will snugly fit. Fasten these in the rockers by boring four quarter-inch holes and driving pegs.

When you have completed the four rockers you are ready to join each pair. This is easily done by fastening two pieces three inches wide and fourteen inches long on each side of the upright close to the rocker. About two inches from the top of each rocker fasten two more three-inch pieces. All of this work can be fastened with one half-inch iron screw.

Your rockers are now complete, and you are ready to place the board. Before doing this, however, you must fasten with screws two stout cleats about a foot from each end. When the board is in position it should fit down over the pieces you have fastened across the uprights, and the cleat prevents it from slipping, as it is bent up and down. There are several ways of fastening this, but the one given is the simplest.

"MISS MARY GREEN."

"Miss Mary Green" is a rubber doll who appeared one day late last fall in the postoffice at Winchester, Mass. On her dress was fastened a slip of paper which read: "The climate of New England is too severe for this child; please pass her to the Pacific coast for the winter," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Some friendly clerk put a stamp on her dress and sent her to Montana. From there she went to California, then to British Columbia, and from there to Ottawa. Each postoffice clerk seems to have enjoyed her society as long as he pleased then passed a stamp to her gown and sent her on.

At Denver she evidently attended a banquet of the mailing clerks, and had some new traveling garments given her. Her dress is said to be covered over with postage stamps from various offices in the United States, and around her neck are tied several "poems" written in her honor. She also wears newspaper badges from ten different States, showing the honor with which she was received at the various literary banquets which she had attended. From Ottawa she brought back a tag which proved to be a pass to the gallery of the House of Commons.

NEED OF TECHNICAL HIGH SCHOOLS IN OUR SYSTEM.

An Advanced Paper on a Subject That is of Interest to the Local Educators.

The following is published at the request of Secretary McElmonds of the Oakland Board of Education. The subject is "The Need of Technical High Schools in Our Educational System."

(By Victor C. Anderson, Dean of Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago, in the Engineering News, July 21, 1902.)

The existing engineering schools of the United States supply to only a limited extent, the needs of modern industry. Since they furnish merely the highest grade of workers, as does the Zurich Polytechnicum and the technical school at Winterthur, Blum and Burkhardt, in Switzerland. They furnish a technical training not for the many, but only for the few. What should be done for the great army of workers in our industries, who need the skill of the mechanic, together with sufficient intelligence and training to understand the directions of the professional engineers above them? Their number is legion. At the present time this country makes little or no adequate provision for their instruction. This is the realm of secondary education. Whenever we, as a nation, approach the subject as the Swiss have done, from a practical, common sense, industrial standpoint, and build our industries on the solid foundation of science, as exemplified in technical education, then our industrial supremacy will be assured.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION.

"If technical education is a good thing for one class, it is equally good for others. Hitherto the ranks of such workers have been supplied by the influx of foreigners trained abroad, aided to some extent by apprenticeship in the United States. But we should not, as a nation, depend upon any such uncertain supply. We should follow the example of Switzerland, and recognizing the dependence of national prosperity upon technical education, set about the task of providing an education for all classes of workers suited to their lives. The technical high school, properly equipped and put in close relationship with the industries, will satisfy this national need. It will not be a copy of the European trade school, but rather an Americanization of the foreign trade school and industrial school; it will be copied and made general it would solve for us the question of secondary technical education."

RADICAL MEASURE.

"In considering so radical a measure some important features should be emphasized in order to avoid misapprehension. The main idea is such a school would be a high grade grammar school and give him a good secondary education, together with a training on one or more technical or trade lines."

"Much of the laboratory, drafting, room, and testing work now done by the technical colleges could be incorporated into the courses, and we should have technical high schools for the 'people's colleges.' There can be no reasonable doubt that our technical education in the United States is weakest in this respect, in our high-grade institutions of technology. We are training the commissioned officers of our industrial army, but the great mass of non-commissioned officers and privates are left untrained. As indicated in the report of the Carnegie committee, technical education may be said to run parallel with the general lines of education and be divided into three parts, corresponding to the grammar, high school and college grades of the established system. The lowest grade is generally picked up in the shop by boys without special training. The middle grade is represented by the technical high school in Switzerland and by technical colleges and institutes of technology in this country. These represent the highest grade of technical education that demands thorough knowledge of mathematics and the sciences, and is distinctly professional in character. Between these two extremes lies the region of secondary technical education which is represented in Switzerland by the trade school, and in the United States by the technical high school."

AN EFFORT BEING MADE TO ESTABLISH A LODGE OF THE MODERN KNIGHTS.

ELMHURST, Aug. 2.—R. B. Meyers, attorney, is working to secure for Elmhurst a lodge of Knights of Pythians. He has been investigating the proposition for some time, and is of the opinion that it will be an easy matter to secure the required number of charter members. Already a large number of people have announced their willingness to join should the lodge be established. Definite action in the matter will be taken within a short time.

WILL INSTALL TO-NIGHT.

Tonight, Elmhurst Grove No. 143, Ancient Order of United Druids will hold a public installation at which they will install its officers, the Grove having organized but a few days ago.

PRETTY OAKLAND GIRL IS QUIETLY MARRIED.

Miss Clara Fields Slips Away to San Jose and Marries Arthur Gogel.

Miss Clara Fields, a popular young girl of this city, well known in musical circles, slipped away to San Jose during the first part of last week, and there married the man of her choice, Arthur Gogel. The wedding came as a complete surprise to the friends of both the bride and groom. No one but the officiating clergyman knew of the match, till a telegram from the bride informed her friends that the momentous event had taken place.

Upon their return to this city the young couple were tendered a reception. They will leave shortly for Portland and after a short stay they will go to Philadelphia, the groom being a travelling salesman of that city.

Edward J. Morgan is to play a special engagement as John Storm in "The Christ" with the Bradford-Thayer Stock Company at the Worcester, Mass., Theatre.

land by the trade school, and the specialized technical school. In the United States it is represented by more or less feeble efforts in a few trade schools, a limited number of private institutions turned to help the workmen, and in night schools.

CHINESE WALL.

"Besides these instrumentalities there is another, arisen only within the past few years, which for pure business eclipses all other efforts—the school of correspondence. While our educators have been discussing mere theories and methods and have been building a Chinese wall about their schools, the correspondence school, shuttling out all who were too large to walk through the narrow gateway which they themselves had made, private enterprise has discovered that half a million young Americans outside the walls were hungry for a technical education. Since they were forbidden to enter the sacred gates of technical education, they went out to them. When the history of education shall have been written, no greater reproach will rest upon the educators of this decade than their failure to hear the call of this multitude for an education suited to their needs. Technical education is one of the greatest needs of an enlightened democracy and should not be left to private enterprise."

"With State normal schools where young men and women can be trained for teaching, with State universities furnishing instruction in agriculture, dairying and stockraising, besides training engineers and librarians—technical education supplied at State or National expense—it is evident that we are irretrievably committed to the policy of providing technical education at public expense."

WILL ENTERTAIN AT HAYWARDS.

WOMEN'S IMPROVEMENT CLUB HAS ARRANGED FOR A VERY LARGE AFFAIR.

HAYWARDS, Aug. 2.—The Women's Improvement Club has completed its program for next Friday night's entertainment. The women have been preparing for this event for some time and have devoted every effort to make it a success. The best talent has been secured, and, aside from the merit of the program, the cause for which the entertainment is given should warrant a full house.

The entertainment is being given by the women in order to increase the funds of the club so that much-needed improvements may be effected. Already the club has a bank account of more than $100, and the officers are of the opinion that the coming event will increase the fund nearly one-half.

The following is the program: Selection, P. J. Crosby; Specialties, Hazel Callahan; soprano solo, "Call Me Back," Denza; Mrs. Ivey Wandesford; recitation, Miss Bessie Murray; violin solo, selections from "Il Trovatore," Bert Cooper; piano solo, from Liszt, "Rhapsodie Hongroise," Mrs. E. Fowler Cooper; guitar solo, Dr. Cecil Corwin; recitation, Miss Bessie Murray.

PLEASANTON PLAYS DUST IN PLEASANTON.

JOHN NEVIS OF PAVILION FAME IS ABOUT TO MARRY MRS. GEORGE.

PLEASANTON, Aug. 2.—The oil that is to be used on the county roads arrived the first of the week. To accommodate it, a vault has been located on a lot adjoining the Hall warehouse. Sprinkling with oil began Thursday morning. This is a needed improvement as it settles the dust better than the water does.

It is rumored that the Pleasanton Band will furnish music during the week of the coming fair, which will be from the 25th to the 30th of August. Licenses have been taken out for the marriage of J. Nevis, owner of the Nevis Pavilion, and also one of the Town Trustees, and Mrs. George, both of Pleasanton. The marriage will take place in the near future.

THE COMING FAIR.

The people of Pleasanton are spending their time in trying to make a success out of the coming fair. Envelopes are being sent to the fair on them, and are being distributed among the business people to be sent to different places.

If a citizen, who has been previously registered as a qualified elector in any of the cities and counties of this State, his name shall not be entered by the Clerk unless he produces a certificate of such registration, issued by the clerk authorized by law to issue such certificate, which certificate shall be prima facie evidence of his naturalization.

If born in a foreign country, upon affidavit that he became a citizen of United States by virtue of the naturalization act of 1802, and while he was residing in the United States, and under age of twenty-one years, and that he was an elector of the county at the next ensuing election.

In other cases, upon the affidavit of party that he is or will be an elector of the county at the next succeeding election.

Further notice is hereby given that Affidavits of Registration must be sworn to before the County Clerk or his deputies, and that they can not, in compliance with the provisions of the new Registration Law, be sworn to before any other officer.

POPULARITY OF THE SUMMER MAN.

If it be true that the spring season is the season of the Summer Man, then it is also true that the Summer Man is the man of the hour. He is the man who is the center of attraction, the man who is the life of the party. He is the man who is the most popular of all men.

He is the man who is the most popular of all men. He is the man who is the center of attraction, the man who is the life of the party. He is the man who is the most popular of all men.

GLORIFYING THE BRIM.

The Summer Man is the man who is the center of attraction, the man who is the life of the party. He is the man who is the most popular of all men.

He is the man who is the most popular of all men. He is the man who is the center of attraction, the man who is the life of the party. He is the man who is the most popular of all men.

HOW DO YOU LIKE THIS?

From all the flowers, the fruits and the green things of nature that are brought and laid in a golden harvest at the feet of Phyllis, there may be chosen this hat or that blossom, perhaps even a rose and luscious berry, as the season's adornment for this irresistibly attractive and mutable creature.

One day it is a wreath of brilliant-hued autumn leaves, the next a crown of scarlet berries, and now we see Phyllis arrayed in a costume quaint and pretty, shading her bewitching eyes beneath a single leaf culled from the wide-spreading palm.

Garlands of flowers and quaint, pretty ornamentation that it seems a fresh bit of an old-fashioned garden or a stray fragment of the forest instead of a stiff and common hat.

In the very center of the hat on top is fastened a tall, tufted crown of some soft fabric, while about the extreme edge is a dainty outline of filmy meshing or a quaint quilling, in keeping with the slaphdash of the whole. About the crown may be wound a wreath of cherry or sweet-scented apple blossoms. These are far more appropriate than rare exotics.

There are fluttering strings to add to the

KNOWS HER BOOK.

A palm-leaf fan in its ordinary state has never been considered a picturesque object, but the severe, characteristic lines are so severely recognizable in this new and fancy headwear, which is so becoming to youthful beauty.

It requires more than a passing glance to reveal the fundamental structure of this new head of the ingenious feminine mind, for the palm-leaf hat is so deftly hidden beneath portmanteaus of the hat, and at the same time serve a practical purpose. In some cases this pretty hat is rendered more charming by having a wreath of fine blossoms resting underneath the brim and trailing gracefully over the soft hair.

The rigid outline may be slightly bent so as to give a piquant tilt to the wide brim, and the hat may be worn with a demure air or one that is delightfully rakish.

A palm-leaf hat is an ideal head covering for the summer, and even the admirable sun bonnet, with all its bewitching possibilities, must give way to this more novel conception.

It should not, however, be worn with every costume, for there is such a decided quaintness and prettiness about its style that only certain frocks seem appropriate.

If you choose to wear one, see to it that its jaunty air is not spoiled by surroundings along the line of up-to-date. The chief charm is in its unlikeness to fashionable fancies.

POETRY OF PROFILE.

THE ELEVATION OF THE FORK.

"Do you know that the fork occupies the place of greatest dignity at the modern feast?" asked a man, as he seated himself with two companions in the corridor of the hotel during the first hour of last Friday morning, after having partaken of an elaborate banquet. "I have never been more impressed by the fact than now, and I have just been thinking it over in all of its bearings."

of forks was introduced into England, and Queen Elizabeth stopped eating with her fingers, they subjects laughed at her affectation. Now a mortal who is not a queen requires 11 of them. How important has become the fork!

"I am old enough to remember when they were used very little, and then to eat with four knives was entirely proper, provided you placed the back and not the edge in your mouth. But forks were scarcely fit to eat with in those days, for they were two-lined affairs, with which very little could be picked up. Now they have developed two more lines, spread out into proportions that give them a square utility, and it appears that we cannot have too many of them. The fork has, indeed, reached a remarkable elevation. Think of handling 11 of them at one meal!

Early in 1600, when the Italian fashion will ascertain his favorite color and never him at his wearing any other.

Now, with this stunning get up, if he but retain or acquire an ability to lie gracefully he will win more trophies in the way of hearts in one season than the man in a fur-lined coat can win in ten.

Whether the diamonds or the lies have the most findings might be a question were it not for the woman's known susceptibility to shiny apparel and her instinctive recognition of a lie, which rather give the diamonds the advantage.

The winter man, no matter how expensive his tail or costly his "fruits," is not in the running with the chap who sports white flannels, though he be only a ten-dollar-a-week clerk on a vacation.

Sentiment goes only with flannels and moonlight, and, though dear to a man's vanity is his fur-lined coat, dearer still is his box of the game of "hearts" that isn't played with cards, and when he realizes that in a fur-lined coat he becomes more or less dominated by the characteristics of the animal whose skin he wears, and in the same proportion becomes unlovable to feminine kind, he will store it for all time and follow the summer season and be a Summer Man the whole year round.

Great Diamond Found.

In one of the mines near Kimberly a diamond of 400 karats was found a few weeks ago. It is a pale yellow color, and its form is that of an octahedron.

Owing to its great size the news of its discovery has caused much excitement, and the owner did not feel quite easy until he had placed it in a safe in one of the local banks.

The exact value of the diamond is not yet known, but 50 per cent. of it must be paid to the government, and experts say that this sum alone represents a considerable fortune.
